VBA ready to set off on September educational tour

Victoria's building and plumbing regulator is gearing up to deliver roadshows across the state ahead of the implementation of the National Construction Code (NCC) 2022.

The NCC, which is updated every three-years, sets out the legislative requirements for the design and construction of buildings and the technical requirements for plumbing and drainage.

As part of its role in ensuring practitioners know the changes, the Victorian Building Authority (VBA) is running 15 in-person events across the state.

The VBA's State Building Surveyor Andrew Cialini has encouraged practitioners to attend one of the events to learn more about the changes.

"We're bringing people and thinking together, using the deep and diverse expertise at the VBA to engage with practitioners to strengthen Victoria's building system."

"This roadshow is incredibly important and is a chance for practitioners across the state to engage with our technical and regulation experts and get an understanding of NCC 2022," Mr Cialini said.

The NCC Roadshow will visit the following locations and include a plumbing and building session:

Geelong	6 September	Bairnsdale	22 September
Warrnambool	7 September	Werribee	26 September
Ballarat	8 September	Bundoora	27 September
Wodonga	13 September	Ringwood	28 September
Shepparton	14 September	Dandenong	29 September
Bendigo	15 September	Mornington	30 September
Wonthaggi	20 September	Mildura	19 October
Traralgon	21 September

"As Victoria's building and plumbing regulator, the VBA safeguards Victoria's future and strives to make a complex system simpler to navigate for practitioners, so everyone gets the best outcomes," Mr Cialini said.

In late July 2022, the Australian Building Codes Board announced it will recommend to Building Ministers to consider delaying the publication of the full and final version of NCC 2022 until no earlier than 1 October 2022. For more information visit the ABCB website.
